Hiring Committee
Cicero®-MGT

Dear Hiring Committee,

I am writing to apply for the Associate Consultant position at Cicero-MGT. I am currently a PhD candidate in Economics at Johns Hopkins University. My training combines rigorous quantitative analysis, structured problem solving, and clear communication. I am motivated by problems that require careful framing, disciplined analysis, and actionable recommendations. Cicero-MGT's focus on data-driven strategy and transformation aligns closely with how I approach analytical work.

My research agenda is at the intersection of wealth inequality and macroeconomics. In my job market paper, I build and estimate a structural heterogeneous agent model with returns that differ across households. The core contribution is to show how heterogeneity in returns and income risk jointly shape the wealth distribution and consumption behavior. Relative to closely related work, my framework performs better at matching the lower and middle portions of the wealth distribution. This difference matters quantitatively. Models that focus primarily on returns heterogeneity can fit the top of the wealth distribution closely but tend to generate too much wealth among the bottom half of households. In my framework, income uncertainty generates a precautionary saving motive that produces genuinely low wealth households. This leads to a realistic distribution of marginal propensities to consume and aggregate consumption responses that align with empirical estimates.

A key feature of my research is the integration of quantitative and qualitative analysis to support strategic decisions. I lead analyses, design research strategies, and synthesize findings into clear written and visual deliverables. I regularly translate complex analysis into actionable insights and work collaboratively to refine conclusions. This work requires judgment, organization, and the ability to guide teams toward clear recommendations, skills that map directly to consulting engagements such as private equity due diligence and organizational transformation.

I am particularly interested in Cicero-MGT because of its emphasis on early responsibility and close collaboration with clients. The opportunity to lead small teams, engage directly with decision makers, and contribute to a wide range of strategy projects is especially appealing. I value environments that challenge consultants to think independently while collaborating meaningfully with colleagues.

My economics training has provided a strong foundation in analytical reasoning, data analysis, and structured communication. I am comfortable working with Excel and PowerPoint to develop clear analyses and presentations, and I take pride in producing work that is precise and client ready. I work well in team settings and value feedback as part of continuous professional development. These skills are central to my research process and would be directly applicable as an Associate Consultant at Cicero-MGT.

I am also enthusiastic about the opportunity to work in either Salt Lake City or Washington, D.C., and to contribute in person to Cicero-MGT's collaborative culture. I see this role as an opportunity to apply my analytical training in a consulting environment focused on delivering real impact across sectors.

I would welcome the opportunity to contribute my skills and perspective to Cicero-MGT. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Decory Edwards
